Judge rules in favor of construction company

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Following two and a half days of testimony, Circuit Judge Rubie Griffin ruled Wednesday that the county could not assess liquidated damages against Bond Construction Company.

With the judge's ruling against liquidated damages, the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission must dismiss some $31,037 in charges assessed against the construction company.

The damages had been assessed against Bond Construction beginning when their contract with the Port and Harbor Commission for the reconstruction of "Taxiway E" at Stennis International Airport, expired.

Griffin said he disallowed liquidation damages because proof of actual damages sustained by the commission "does not go to the degree it should' and 'the evidence lacks credibility.'

The reconstruction work was funded 90 percent by a grant from the Federal Aviation Administration and 10 percent by the Port and Harbor Commission.

Griffin also ruled that the commission could not charge Bond for extra engineering time filed by project engineer Mike Smith of Advanced Developments Inc.

Port and Harbor Commission Director James deBlanc said this ruling means the commission will now have to pay for the extra engineering time.

According to facts revealed in the hearing the charges for the extra engineering time could amount to nearly $10,000.

Bond did agree to pay $130 for runway lights damaged during construction, $516.75 in back charges for tests made of construction materials and $50 for extra attorney's fees.

The amount Bond agreed to pay for the lights is less than requested by the commission, but county attorney Walter Gex said even if they had paid 100 percent, 'it wasn't much of a consolation prize.'

Immediately following the rulings by Griffin, another hearing was started between the commission and the construction company on a complaint filed by Bond in regards to another construction contract Bond has completed at the airport.

Attorneys from both sides agreed that the two-and-a-half day hearing on the taxiway contract was the 'easy one.'

Arson squad urges precautions to insure stove safety

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

During the winter season in Hancock County there have already been three fire losses resulting from problems with chimneys or woodburning stoves, according to county Arson Squad Investigator Ed Friloux.

"People need to be aware of safety procedures," he said, "because it is very easy to lose the heat source or more."

Friloux urged homeowners with questions about the proper installation or maintenance of chimneys or woodburning heaters to contact their local fire department for information.

"Since we are in the middle of the time for real cold weather, homeowners need to be sure that heater or chimney was installed properly and that proper maintenance is completed for safe use of the heat source."

Proper installation of the spark arrester is necessary to prevent accidental fires, Friloux said. There must not be any holes or rusting in the pipes, he said.

"Anywhere the vent pipe goes through the roof, triple wall pipe must be used and it must be spaced properly," he added.

Friloux said the homeowner with a masonry vent, needs to ensure that fire mortar, fire brick or a chimney liner was used.

It is also necessary that vents be kept clean and clear, he said.

"All fire places and woodburning heaters should be safety checked twice a year, in fall and spring," Friloux said.

According to Friloux there are several hazard areas to be checked to prevent a fire.

He said fires have been reported to have been caused by the single wall pipe which allows rain to get in and the pipe has seriously rusted from the inside; spark arresters not installed or not installed properly; no safety chains or doors in front of the fire box; and allowing for birds to build nests.

"In this area there are a large number of pine trees and excessive use of pine in the heater or chimney causes an extremely hot fire, as well as a tar buildup in the fire box and chimney," he said.

People need to make sure the chimney or the vent pipe is cleaned out by a professional or utilize a chemical available to be used to clean out the tar built up inside, Friloux said.

"An excessive buildup of tar can cause clogging down of the chimney, cause the vent pipe to rust or cause an excessive amount of heat," he added.

Friloux said two of the fires had been caused by the 'rusting out' of the single wall pipes.

"These single wall pipes must be checked for rust because holes in these pipes can result in flames coming through," he concluded.

"Technology has made it feasible to use an old-fashioned way of heating in today's home, but the same technology has provided ways that must be used to ensure the safety of these methods, if we will only follow them," Friloux said.

Parents plan bus service

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A group of parents with students in Annunciation School met last week and discussed plans to establish a bus service for students attending Bay St. Louis and Waveland parochial schools.

Louis Breaux IV, a spokesman for the group, said, "We feel Annunciation's closing at the end of this school year will create a serious transportation problem for many parents wanting their children to continue a Catholic education."

"Several parents from the Kiln-Diamondhead area met and we already have over 20 students for a bus service. Several more students and it would possibly make the service feasible," Breaux added.

Breaux said the plans for the bus service had nothing to do with any school, that it was just a group of concerned parents involved.

A second meeting is set for 7 p.m. on Feb. 15 at the Annunciation School and Breaux asks all concerned parents to please attend.

"We should be able to discuss estimated costs per student and find out if there is enough interest," Breaux stated.

For further information Breaux or his wife can be reached at 255-7158 or 255-1724.

One arrested for burglary

By DENA BISNETTE

A hearing for Thomas Stinson of Bay St. Louis, who was arrested Tuesday on a burglary charge, was scheduled for Wednesday in city court.

Stinson, whose bond was set at $5,000, was charged in connection with a Jan. 14 burglary at Dr. Allen Koskan's office off US-90, according to Bay St. Louis Police Investigator Joe Pica.

Investigator Delbert Seay of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department recovered a boat motor taken from a storage building behind the office, Pica said.

GRAND MARSHAL—Barbara Salloum of WLOX-TV in Biloxi will serve as grand marshal for Nereids' 19th annual Mardi Gras parade at 2 p.m. Sunday in Waveland. She is a graduate of Millsaps College and began her television career in Jackson on WBLT-TV as hostess of "Teen Tempos," a Saturday afternoon dance program. She has been a resident of the Gulf Coast for 25 years and has been active in various theatre groups as well as hosting WLOX-TV's "Good Morning South Mississippi" for the past seven years. Salloum is also public relations director for WLOX-TV and has recently been elected to ABC Television's Promotion Advisory Board. She and her husband, Kaleel George Salloum, are the parents of three children, Kaleel George Jr., Victoria and Allison.

VFW and police to sponsor youth fingerprinting program

Theodore S. Price, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3253, 343 Third St., Bay St. Louis will sponsor a fingerprinting and photographing session free for all children on Saturday, Feb. 9 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the post home.

The children must be accompanied by and receive written permission from their parents or guardians.

The fingerprint card with photograph will be given to the parent or guardian as a permanent record of their child.

The program, being done by the Bay St. Louis Police Department, is part of a nationwide effort to identify and help locate nearly two million children that disappear every year in the United States. That is more than 5,400 children every day.

The police and VFW are urging all parents and guardians to take advantage of this service for the protection of their children.

"Cookies and drinks will be served," according to Earl Salaun, VFW member.

County school board looking for architect

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County School Board will have to find another architect for six planned classrooms at Gulfview Elementary School.

Fred Wagner, the architect originally selected for the project, told board members Monday that his seven percent fee does not meet criteria for state funding.

According to Wagner, Education Finance Commission Executive Secretary Frank Lovell has stated that the EFC will not provide fund-ding for architectural work on any project with a fee of more than six percent.

If the school board agrees to provide the other one percent, Hancock County will lose priority for funding, Wagner said.

"In the past year, Lovell has interpreted the regulations concerning this to indicate that a district shouldn't spend more than six percent and if they can, it's an indication they don't need the money," Wagner explained.

"It's a kind of blackmail and I don't think much of it. I've talked to a lot of other architects around the state who don't either," he added.

He called Lovell's interpretation of the EFC regulations on architects' fees "short-sighted."

Wagner, however, said he does not intend to lower his fee to six percent. "I simply can't do what the district needs for six percent," he explained.

"I've built my professional reputation on quality and I don't want to do the less superior work for that fee."

Wagner added, "I don't want the public to think I'm charging a fee that's out of line."

He explained that architects' fees vary widely and said it is possible that the school district will find one who will do the Gulfview project for six percent.

Wagner also stated that although he is no longer interested in doing the architectural work for the new classrooms, he is interested in the school district's future building projects.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph said the need for the classrooms is "a crisis situation" because the district will have to provide facilities for kindergarten as well as absorb about 100 students from Annunciation School, which is closing by September 1986.

The board authorized Randolph to try to find a replacement for Wagner.

In other business Monday, the board:

—Accepted a bid of $118,000 from Exxon Corporation for an oil, gas and mineral lease on 16th section land;

—Hired three substitute teachers and a parttime janitor for the remainder of the 1984-85 school year; and —Approved two trips to Mardi Gras parades in Metairie, La., for the Hancock North Central Band.

James A. Rester

Hancock County native James A. Rester of Leetown was laid to rest Wednesday.

There are only a very few people from Hancock County about whom we have heard so many good things while living as we had of James Rester.

He was the business leader in the rural area of Hancock County, and known throughout the county as well as the state.

A former state senator and politically still active until his death as chairman of the Hancock County Republican Executive Committee, he was a very good citizen.

A family man, faithful member of his church, active in the Gideons, Rester was always ready to help anyone in need whether he knew them or not. He left his good marks in Hancock County.

To his wife, children, family and friends, we offer our condolences and wish James Rester a happy journey.

Teachers offer governor a new approach to economic development in Mississippi

Editor:
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor:

Judging from his remarks to the Mississippi Electric Power Association, Governor Allain is in sad need of advisors. He was right on only one count—"we are a poor state."

This is not news, nor is it a mystery. Mississippi is poor for one reason only—its miserable failure, time and again, to commit the necessary resources to education.

Experts keep telling us that the one way out of the mire of poverty in which we wallow is to attract high-paying businesses and industries by providing their most important requirement, a sound educational system. Yet the governor refuses to support taxes, even on goods like soft drinks and cigarettes, to ensure such a system.

The governor said that if taxes are raised, the poor "won't be able to send their children to college or buy a new house." Someone better tell the governor that they can't do so now, and never will be able to, unless he can offer them better job opportunities instead of a few cents off in taxes.

The governor said that "too many taxes" will "run businesses and industries out of this state." Someone better tell the governor that corporate business taxes contributed only 2.5 percent to the state compared to Louisiana's 5.6 percent and Tennessee's 4.9 percent—and no industries are fleeing those states, which, by the way, have an average per capita income that is nearly $2,000 higher than Mississippi's.

The governor said, "I don't want to raise taxes for teacher pay raises, but don't let anyone try to tell you that my administration is not dedicated to education." Someone better tell the governor that, in spite of Mississippi's reputation as the least educated state in the Union, her citizens recognize double-talk when they hear it and are not fooled by his efforts to rebuild personal popularity through anti-tax demagoguery that goes dead against the best interests of the state by insuring that competent teachers will leave Mississippi's classrooms in unprecedented numbers for jobs elsewhere.

Please help. Tell the governor and legislators, with letters, post cards, and phone calls, that Mississippi's citizens understand the importance of a sound education system to their future prosperity and expect state officials to exhibit true leadership by finding a fair and just way to pay the price.

Month dedicated to eye health

Medical doctors in Mississippi who are ophthalmologists (eye physicians and surgeons) are observing Eye Health Care Month by urging citizens to become more aware of the causes of unnecessary blindness.

According to Marion L. Dodson, MD, of Gulfport, president of the Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Association, most of the 47,000 cases of blindness each year are the result of personal failure to obtain early medical treatment for eye disease, or failure to adequately protect the eyes against accidents at work or play.

Dodson said that glaucoma is one of the primary causes of unnecessary blindness. Glaucoma is a disease of the eye in which pressure inside the eye is higher than it should be.

A dangerous myth concerning glaucoma is the belief that warnings are given by the presence of eye pain, seeing halos around lights or excessive tearing. The most common type of glaucoma, Dodson said, causes no pain or symptoms.

"If diagnosed and treated early, glaucoma can be controlled, and sight can be saved. Everyone over about age 40 should have a glaucoma check once a year, whether or not glasses or contacts are worn," he concluded.

Eye Health Care Month is a national project. Comedian Bob Hope, who recently had successful eye surgery, is serving as honorary chairman.

News From The Governor's Office

Gov. Bill Allain

TEACHER PAY AND TAXES

Mississippi schoolteachers can get a substantial pay raise without raising taxes for other Mississippi taxpayers. And that continues to be my recommendation to the Legislature—that we give our state teachers a $1,500 pay raise, some 9.8 percent increase—without raising taxes for anyone else.

But I am concerned that pressure groups favoring raising your taxes to give teachers more than the $1,500 pay raise will make more noise than those of you who will pay those additional taxes for the pay raises. The only way for average Mississippians who pay taxes to stop a tax increase is to contact your legislator and tell them that you don't want to pay any more taxes.

Much has been written and said in recent weeks about the teachers' wish to earn the Southeastern average in salary. Like most Mississippians, I am sorry we cannot pay teachers high salaries. I'm sorry we cannot pay all Mississippians high salaries, but the fact remains that we are a poor state. Let me illustrate.

The average personal income in Mississippi is $8,972 annually. It is the lowest in the nation. Mississippi teachers earn $15,895 on the average now, and the $1,500 pay raise I have recommended would raise them to $17,395—more than double the state average.

But teachers want to earn the Southeastern average salary, which is $18,506 annually. Of the 12 states included in the Southeastern average for teachers, eight do not pay the southeastern average. They are Alabama, Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia, and Mississippi. The four who do pay the Southeastern average—Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana and Virginia—all have larger and stronger tax bases than Mississippi.

Additionally, nationwide 13 states do not pay the Southeastern average to their teachers. Those states are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Maine, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, West Virginia, and Mississippi.

If we raise Mississippi teachers to the $17,395 I have recommended, their salaries will be higher than Arkansas, Maine, New Hampshire, and South Dakota. Of the states that border us, only Louisiana will have a higher salary than Mississippi teachers.

As I have said before, Mississippians do not make the Southeastern average salary in any field. Remember that one-fourth of our families are below the poverty level.

Of the people working in major professions, we are still averaging only $16,099 in salary, compared to the Southeastern average of $18,634 annually. The professions covered in this study are mining, construction, manufacturing, transportation, utilities, wholesale trade, retail trade, finance, insurance, real estate, services, and government.

Other factors point to the need to keep taxes and spending at their present levels. Proposals are pending in Washington that could result in further cuts in the federal budget or changes in tax laws. We don't know how this will affect our state budget. Local taxes, as a result of reappraisal, are going up 300 to 400 percent in some areas. We know that will hurt your personal budgets. All these factors show that Mississippians don't need to be strapped with more taxes at this time.

As Governor, I don't tax anybody. But I do have a veto over legislation that I don't believe is in the best interest of the people of Mississippi.

If the Legislature accepts my recommendation for a $1,500 pay raise for teachers, we need to look at other ways of improving education in Mississippi. I continue to be committed to an education system second to none here.

One way I believe we can do that is by insuring that we have the best teachers available for our children. To that end, when the $1,500 goes into place, I think we should look at merit pay for teachers before we give any more pay raises. That way, instead of following the philosophy that higher salaries give us better teachers, we can reward the better teachers with higher salaries. And our children will benefit most of all.

Quotables by Cuevas

It is Mardi Gras time with the parades starting to roll on Sunday.

The Krewe of Nereids is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 10, 2 p.m. down US-90 in Waveland, followed by the Krewe of Eros.

The parade route is from Chocktaw Plaza Shopping Center East on US-90 to Katies Kandy Shop and then west to Our Shopping Center.

As you know this will be the 19th year for the Krewe of Nereids, and the 12th year for Eros.

Barbara Salloum of WLOX-TV is Nereid's Grand Marshall.

The theme of this year's parade is 'Sunday in the Park'.

There should be a lot of 'throw me something Mr.', or should we say Mrs. in Waveland on Sunday.

Parades scheduled for Sat., Feb. 16, are Diamondhead's Land and Sea and the Krewe of Kids in Cedar Point.

St. Paul's Carnival Association is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 17 for 2 p.m.

Mardi Gras Day will see at least two parades in Hancock County.

The Krewe of Real People in Bay St. Louis who we have been told will have their first doubloons to throw this year are scheduled to start at 11 a.m.

The Krewe of Triton rambles down US-90 from Our Shopping Center in Waveland to Bay St. Louis.

We hope everyone will have a good time during the Mardi Gras season.

In 1986, the State of Mississippi will have an opportunity of having its first native elected as national commander of the American Legion.

That person is Jimmy Dean of Corinth, and Mississippi American Legionnaires from throughout the state are having fund raisers to aid in his bid for this very high office.

Waveland's American Legion Post recently sponsored a dance with proceeds going towards Dean's campaign.

On Friday, the Bay St. Louis American Legion Post will sponsor a meatball and spaghetti benefit from 5 to 8 p.m. at the post's home on Green Meadow Road.

Tickets can be gotten from legion members or at the door for a donation of only $3.

We are hoping Dean will become the National American Legion Commander, as this will be a very high honor for our state.

Many members of the Bay's Legion Post and Auxiliaries in addition to several from Waveland have been working very hard to make this benefit a success.

Friday would be a good time for mothers to get out of the kitchen and enjoy a good meal at a reasonable price.

PEOPLES BUSINESS

EDUCATION REFORM— IF NOT NOW, WHEN?

A Mississippi legislator has proposed that establishment of a statewide public kindergarten program, which is included in the 1982 Education Reform Act, be delayed for ten years. Present law calls for implementation of the kindergarten program in 1986: his proposal would delay the program until 1996.

While this proposal was being introduced lawmakers were caught up in debate over implementation of school consolidation, another part of the reform effort. Some legislators would delay, or delete, consolidation.

Meanwhile, educators have expressed concern that the next step in the effort to delay education reform may be a move to delay, or delete, new teacher certification requirements.

The legislator who proposed the delay in the kindergarten program commented that he wanted to give the state more time to solve its education problems.

The question is raised: How much more time do we need?

The Mississippi Economic Council and other groups interested in improving education in Mississippi have been calling for reforms included in the 1982 act for at least two decades.

A final question to legislators on education reform: If not now, when?

Computer facility added by cable company

Computer switching control, introduced at Essex Cable TV of Waveland late last year in combination with expanded programming, has come on line at the company's St. Joseph Street facilities.

The new system permits individual services to be expanded or reduced simply and swiftly by entry into the computer program.

Response to the 'electronic commands' transmitted by the computer is made via a descrambling unit attached to the subscriber's television set. Periodic impulses transmitted throughout any 24-hour period keep the descramblers updated.

Additionally, the subscriber is provided with a converter, a unit needed to switch cable channels 2 through 22.

The cable system's manager, Jake Jacob, said yesterday almost 500 addressable descramblers are already operating in Hancock County.

"The 'bugs' that almost drove us nuts have been squashed and we are running in top-notch shape," the manager said.

Essex has expanded its former basic service into "Super Basic" with the addition of new channels, and added a second pay movie channel, Cinemax.

Along with the increased channel count, the company is offering stereophonic audio on both The Nashville Channel and Music Television (MTV).

"This is a first for this area and if subscriber response is any indicator, a move that is long overdue," Jacob said.

Satellite signals are being received from both Satcom 3 and Galaxy 1, with the cable company utilizing two antennas, Jacob noted.

"The antenna in front of the Essex main building, a five-meter unit, trained on Satcom 3, and the other slightly smaller at 4.5 meters is trained on Galaxy.

Essex will bring a marketing team into the Bay-Waveland area to explain the advantages of Super Basic upgrading to existing subscribers and the complete range of services to new subscribers, Jacob said.

Added channels include the Nashville Network and MTV, Lifetime, the Weather Channel, and USA.

WXXV, Channel 25, Gulfport, will be added in April.

Jacob said subscribers not yet on the new service may call his office at 467-2946 to arrange for a customer service representative to call.

Essex crews are adding cable service in Clermont Harbor.

"The Chapman Road extension is virtually complete and we are presently installing from US-90 to Riverview Drive along Washington Street to the Bay Marina, and streets adjoining, Jacob added.

Story Hour titles listed

A Story Hour is presented every Thursday at 10:30 a.m. at the City-County Library in Bay St. Louis.

Pre-school children from ages three to six are invited to attend.

"Shhh...Bang, A Whispering Book" by Margaret Wise Brown begins the program.

"Arms Are Swinging," a physical activity, will be performed between stories.

"The Mixed-Up Chameleon" by Eric Carle is the second book to be read.

"Chicken Little," a flannel board story, will also be presented. Story Hour will conclude with the filmstrip "Rosie's Walk," according to Becky Mitchum Keefer, children's librarian.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: Last year I bought a stereo on time from a local merchant. I have not been able to make the last two payments, because of illness. The merchant now claims to have a lien on all my furniture, including the stereo, and threatens to repossess everything if I do not make the loan current. What can I do?

A: The merchant may have a security interest in your furniture if you signed an agreement which so provided. If he does, he has the right to repossess and sell enough property to pay your debt.

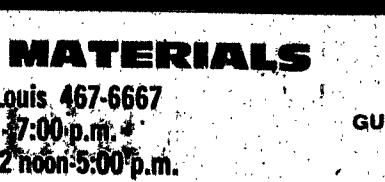

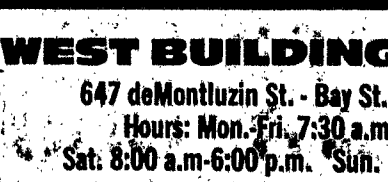

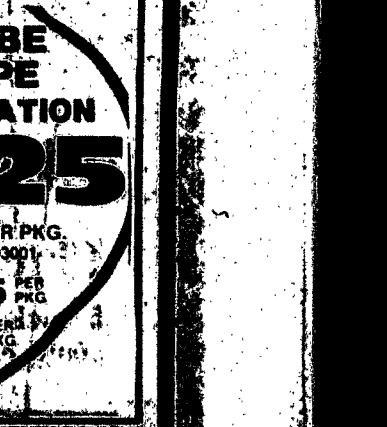

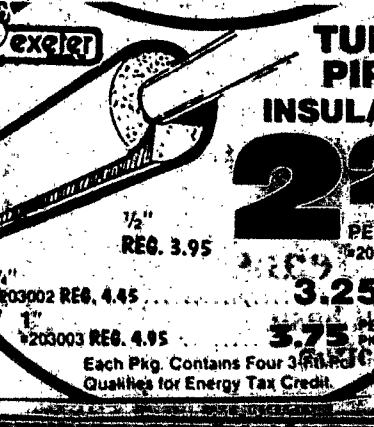

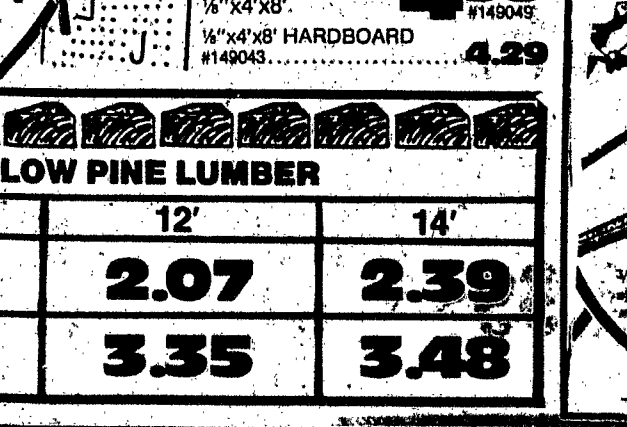

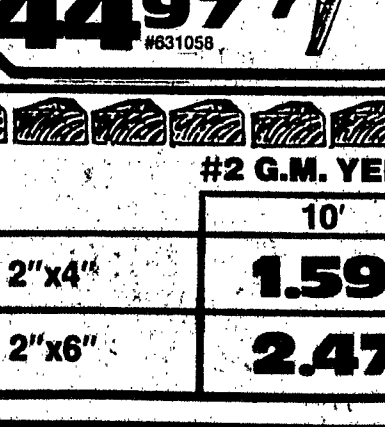

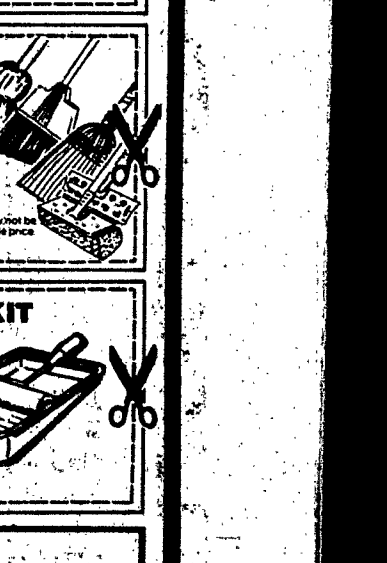

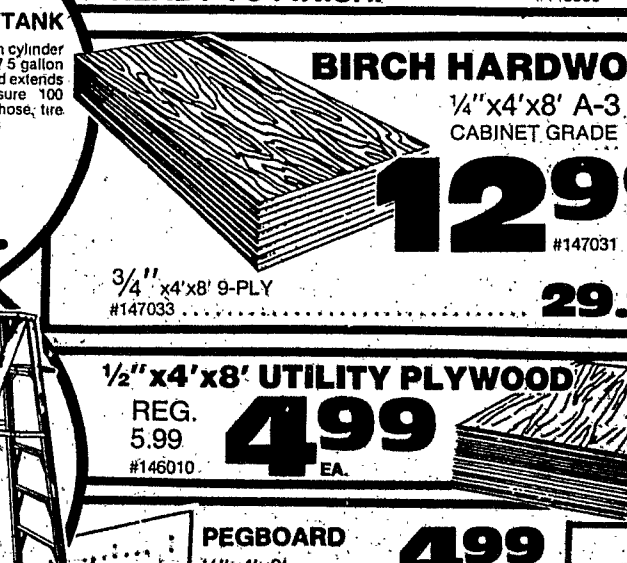

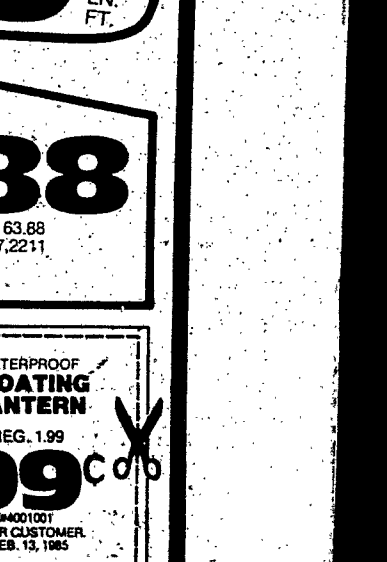

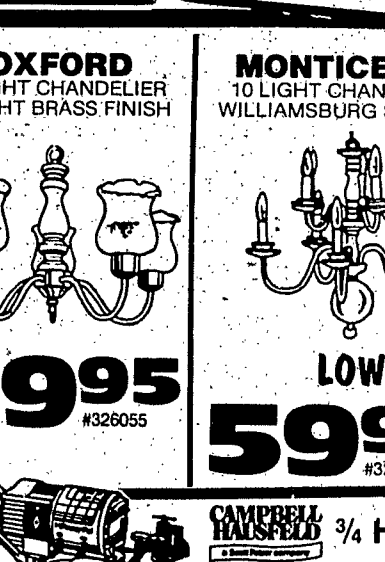

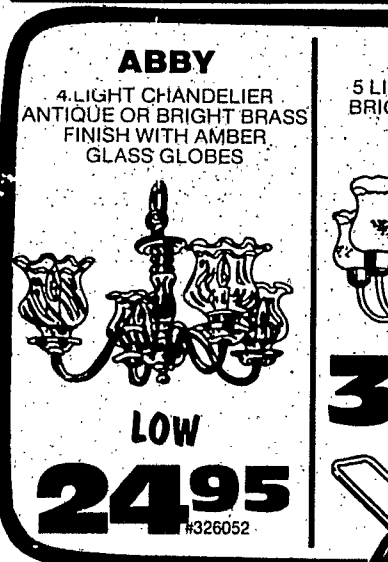

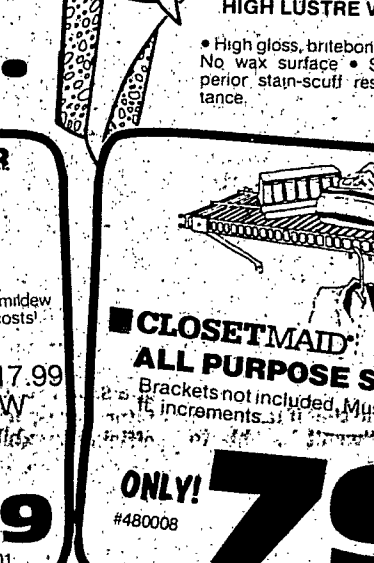

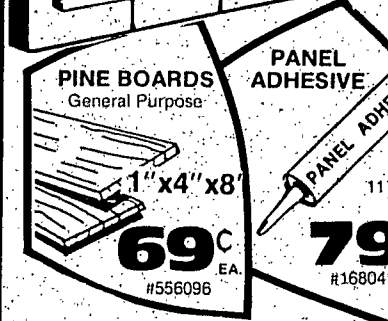

He may not, however, legally enter your house without court approval. If you are having trouble paying other bills, you may wish to consider filing a petition under the bankruptcy laws. If you do so, the merchant's security interest will not be valid against most of your household furnishings.

Q: My ex-husband is obligated to pay me alimony and child support each month. I have recently received a notice that he has gone bankrupt. Does this mean he will be relieved of his obligations to me and our children?

A: Bankruptcy will not discharge your ex-husband's obligations to you. This is true whether your husband files a petition under Chapter 7 or Chapter 13 of the bankruptcy laws. You should, however, file a claim in the bankruptcy proceedings. You may obtain Proof of Claim form either from the bankruptcy court or from most stationery or legal supply stores.

Supervisors request lighter homeowner tax

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has approved a resolution asking that the county's tax burden be distributed equally among large landowners, public utilities and private citizens.

The board plans to forward the resolution, which was approved Monday, to the Mississippi Legislature.

According to Board President A.A. "Dolph" Kellar, board members recently traveled to Jackson to meet with legislators concerning the changes in taxes resulting from reappraisal.

Although reappraisal was designed to distribute taxes more equally among homeowners and theoretically did so, other taxes went down and left private citizens with most of the tax burden.

"The taxes on public utilities were cut in half and the big landowners like the paper companies are paying up to 40 percent less, and there's just too much of a burden on the homeowners," Kellar said.

Kellar added that legislative action would be needed because the board and County Tax Assessor-Collector Edward Murtagh have no authority to change the property taxes affected by reappraisal.

In other matters related to property taxes, the board granted tax exemptions request for two lots in Waveland that have been donated to Loyola University, two lots owned by the Waveland Civic Association and property leased by the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department.

The exemptions become effective next year, Kellar said.

The board also approved the purchase of the McDonald Furniture Building on Main Street as new quarters for the reappraisal section of the tax assessor-collector's office.

The cost of the building will be about $105,000.

In other business, the supervisors were addressed by Hancock County School Superintendent Terrell Randolph, who requested the board's approval for the purchase of a telephone system for the school district's new headquarters at Stennis Airport.

Randolph said the system will cost about $275 per month on a 36-month purchase plan.

Randolph also requested that the county look into insulating the building, explaining that the cost of heating for three to four days last month was $256.

"We haven't even moved in yet," he explained. "We just went down there to clean up."

The board referred the problem to Port and Harbor Commission Director James DeBlanc because the commission is in charge of the facilities at the airport.

DeBlanc speculated that the heating system had been turned on longer than originally believed.

Randolph said his office personnel should be ready to move into the new building in about two weeks.

The board also heard from County Engineer Larry Seal, who reported on the completion and final inspection of resealing work on Flat Top, Caesar-Necaise and Kiln-Picayune roads.

He also discussed the need for repair of Lower Bay Road, which has not been ressealed in 11 years and needs to be widened from 18 feet to 21 feet.

Seal is presently trying to arrange funding for the project through the State Aid Road Program office in Jackson.

In other business: —Supervisor Bert Courrège told the board that installation of additional signals at the Waveland Avenue and Nicholson Avenue crossing is scheduled to begin Feb. 20.

—the board passed a resolution asking the legislature to authorize Hancock County to establish a racetrack if a referendum for one in Jackson County fails; and —authorized the Port and Harbor Commission to send a representative to England to seek foreign industries for Port-Bienville Industrial Park.

The supervisors meet again at 9 a.m. Feb. 14.

STOLEN VEHICLE—Billy James Smith, 42, was arrested Monday and charged with grand larceny of this 1984 Pontiac Trans Am. Mississippi State Trooper Curtis Newman discovered the car early Monday morning in a rest area off Interstate 10. A check by Newman revealed the license plate on the stolen vehicle was illegal and led to the arrest of Smith for auto theft. Smith allegedly stole a truck in November 1984 in Houston, Texas and a Cadillac in Birmingham, Ala. before stealing this vehicle in Boaz, Ala. T. P. Naylor and Fred Keel, both of the Mississippi Highway Patrol, assisted Newman with the arrest. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Errant defendant returns

A 51-year-old Bay St. Louis man who failed to appear in court to face murder charges last week is being held in Hancock County Jail without bond.

Cecil Francis Turner turned himself in Tuesday to the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

"He had been calling for several days from New Orleans," Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said.

"He also called his attorney, (public defender) William Frisbie, last night. And this morning he called me again. We persuaded him to turn himself in."

Turner faces trial in the Feb. 15 shooting death of Lewis E. Meyers Sr., 50, of Lakeshore.

Turner was also indicted on a charge of aggravated assault against the dead man's brother, Kenneth, 40.

When Turner's original bond of $150,000 was reduced to $20,000, it was paid by a professional bondsman.

Turner was jailed again when the bondsman later withdrew.

While in custody, he was treated for an illness at Hancock General Hospital, and his doctor recommended a long hospitalization.

He has been in and out of Veterans Administration hospitals in Louisiana and Mississippi, but never returned to be rebonded.

The last word local officials had on his whereabouts before Tuesday was that he had checked into the VA Hospital in New Orleans on Jan. 22 but left against medical advice.

Circuit Court officials are expected to set a trial date this week.

BY KATY MCGUIRE CAIRE

If you're thinking of giving a touch of good Saint Valentine to your menu on the day of this patron saint of lovers, you are probably thinking in terms of chocolates or other sweets and huge red satin bows and such.

But, man does not live by sweets alone, and with so many of us on diets for health or shape reasons these days, you might want to cast about for other rosy red festive foods.

Rosy red shrimp or crawfish come immediately to mind, and I can't think of a more delicious way to serve them than just boiled, can you? But there's also salad, shrimp or crawfish etouffee, shrimp Creole, and so forth, tomato aspic and more.

A lobster or shrimp mousse is a delightful choice for a cocktail party, luncheon or buffet supper on St. Valentine's Day—or even for a twosome treat or family dinner on that day or another. And, since I didn't have any lobster on hand the other day, I started to make a:

SHRIMP MOUSSE

1 can tomato soup
3 small packs Philadelphia cream cheese

2 Tbsp. unflavored gelatin
3/4 cup finely chopped celery, same of green pepper

2 Tbsp. chopped green onion
1 cup shrimp, chopped
1 cup mayonnaise
Dash of Tabasco

Mash the cream cheese into the soup (undiluted) and heat in a double boiler until the cheese is melted and quite hot.

Meanwhile, soak the gelatin in a cup of cold water for about five minutes or so, then add to the soup-cheese mixture. When it all starts to thicken, add the remaining ingredients and season with Tabasco, also pepper and a bit of salt if you wish.

Pour into oiled mold of your choice, or loaf pan, and refrigerate for at least several hours. Turn out on a platter, with lettuce leaves and green and ripe chopped olives and cherry tomatoes or whatever else you think of, surrounding it.

Garnish with the cup of mayonnaise (and I hope that it's your own home-made, after all this is St. Valentine's Day you're preparing for, isn't it—nothing but your best? Or, you may want to serve the mayonnaise separately, as an extra touch—and even add chopped pimiento or red sweet pepper for good St. Valentine's sake!

This is an adaptation of an old family recipe, originally made with cream and pureed tomatoes and all that, but I've changed to an easier and less expensive version, to suit these times. It was made with lobster, too, originally.

It's a special dish for elegant luncheons or buffet suppers, and a highlight, or "high taste" of the cocktail table, served with toast bits or crackers.

ETV Brief*BLACK AMERICA

Seven black Americans, representing a broad cross section of black politics and philosophy, have been chosen to be the panelists for "Forum on Black America 1985" at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 13, on Mississippi ETV.

The forum will focus on black participation in the American economy and will be moderated by Roger Wilkins of the Institute for Policy Studies.

The panelists are Geraldine L. Daniels, assemblywoman, New York City; Ernest Green, president, Green, Herman and Associates Inc. and former assistant Secretary of Labor; M. Carl Holman, president, National Urban Coalition; Eleanor Holmes Norton, Georgetown University Law Center and former chairman, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under President Carter; Clarence M. Pendleton Jr., chairman Civil Rights Commission; Marc Stepp, international vice-president, United Auto Workers; and Robert Woodson, president, National Center for Neighborhood Enterprise.

The panelists represent several viewpoints in the black community, from liberal to conservative, affirming what Wilkins noted about last year's forum, "State of Black America 1984": that black thought is not necessarily monolithic.

When your work speaks for itself, don't interrupt.

Red Cross office remains open

Twenty-year Red Cross veteran Thelma Kergosien of Bay St. Louis will continue to provide service to military families in Hancock County.

Kergosien said she does not expect her job to be greatly affected by a recent realignment of Red Cross administration on the Gulf Coast in which Hancock County Red Cross services are now under jurisdiction of the Gulf Coast Chapter in Biloxi.

She will maintain her desk in the Civil Defense Office, Valena C. Jones Complex, Old Spanish Trail, Bay St. Louis.

Bob Collins, director of the Gulf Coast chapter headquartered at DeBuys and Fernwood roads, said the new arrangement should mean expanded Red Cross services for the people of Hancock County.

Programs such as cardiopulmonary resuscitation, first-aid and swimming classes and more frequent blood drives will be feasible under the new arrangement, Collins said.

Three members of the now-dissolved Hancock County Red Cross Chapter Board of Directors have been appointed to the Gulf Coast chapter board, Collins added.

Hancock County's Red Cross operations will continue to be funded by the Hancock United Way, he said.

Kergosien's office phone number is 467-4071, and at home, 467-5045.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Mississippi ETV celebrates Black History Month during February with several special programs scheduled.

"Faces," a Mississippi ETV-produced series, has a special line-up planned for February. Hosted by Ruth Campbell, the series airs at 7:30 p.m., Thursdays, with repeats at 5:30 p.m., Sundays.

"Tony Brown's Journal" at 5 p.m., Sundays, presents a four-part examination of the evolution of music in black churches.

"From the American Film Institute" presents "Strange Fruit" at 10 p.m., Friday, Feb. 1. Set in a small Georgia town in 1948, it tells the story of a young black man who is forced to make vital choices when a local registration drive is mounted.

"Piano Players Rarely Ever Play Together," produced by Mississippi ETV and Stevenson Productions Inc., is a video portrait of three generations of New Orleans' pianists and the ways they influenced one another's music. Tuts Washington, Professor Longhair, and Allen Toussaint are featured. The program can be seen at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 6.

At 8 p.m., Monday, Feb. 11 and 18, "Wonderworks" presents "Words by the Heart," set in the early 1900s. Prejudice in the small town rears its head when members of a black family are given jobs formerly given to whites and when young Lena Sills wins a contest at school.

"Forum on Black America" is scheduled for 9 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 13. Black participation in the American economy is the focus of the hour-long "town meeting" featuring a panel of six prominent black Americans.

Andre watts performs a solo piano recital on "Great Performances" at 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 20, at Avery Fisher Hall.

"American Playhouse" presents "Charlotte Forten's Mission" at 9 p.m., Monday, Feb. 25. It is the true story of a young black woman who made it her mission to give black children an education during and after the Civil War.

FARMWEEK

Reporters talk with agriculture students in the state for a story to air on the weekly "Farmweek" series at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 11, on Mississippi ETV.

The students will be asked why they chose agriculture and about the job outlook for them after graduation.

Included on each edition of "Farmweek" are current farm prices, market analyses, news and feature stories about state and national agribusiness, weather forecasts, tips for producers of various commodities and a calendar of upcoming agricultural events in Mississippi.

Nothing splendid has ever been achieved except by those who dared believe that something inside them was superior to circumstance.

"The last thing on my mind was my insurance card. Thanks to Hancock General Hospital and the American Express Card I didn't need it."

"When I saw Billy fall from the tree I knew he needed emergency care. In my rush to get to Hancock General Hospital, I forgot all about our insurance policies and identification card.

"But thanks to Hancock General, I didn't need them. Hancock General accepts the American Express Card and it was all the identification I needed. The doctors set Billy's arm without delay. And when it was all over, the billing clerk told me I could phone in my insurance number. Whatever insurance did not pay was charged to the American Express Card. It was that simple. And the American Express Card receipt is an ideal income tax record.

"I was surprised Hancock General welcomes the American Express Card, but I guess I shouldn't have been. Making things easier for people has always been first in the minds of the professionals at Hancock General Hospital."

"BABY" JOE GOODMAN

Joe Goodman returns to pro ring Friday

By DENA BISNETTE

Bay St. Louis native "Baby" Joe Goodman returns to professional boxing Friday after an eight-month absence from the ring.

Goodman, a five-foot-eight-inch, 160-pound middleweight, faces Paul Whitaker of New Orleans, La., at the Biloxi Hilton.

The outcome of the Whitaker fight and those that follow it may decide whether Goodman continues his boxing career.

"I plan to make 1985 my last year and something mighty good would have to come along to keep me in there," Goodman said.

Goodman is now 27 and has been boxing since 1978. He has been fighting professionally for the past five years and has a 12-6 record.

"I've been in retirement because I didn't like the decision I'd been getting. I thought I'd sit back and wait for some good fights," he said.

Goodman also said his age and a recent change from welterweight to middleweight have been factors in his decision to make 1985 the final year of his boxing career.

Another factor is the current employment situation, which Goodman says has made finding another job difficult.

"The money in boxing is alright. You can't really depend on it but it gets you over the hump."

"My girlfriend doesn't like it when I come home all messed up but she knows the money keeps me off the broke side of the family," he added.

Goodman said he has saved on expenses by not hiring a manager. Instead, he and his trainer, John Loscutt of Slidell, La., arrange fights themselves.

Most of Goodman's fights have been in New Orleans, but he has also fought in Florida and Texas and has had two of his boxing matches televised on ESPN.

"Fighting on television isn't really all that different, but it helps give you that little extra publicity," he commented.

Goodman said one aspect of his career which has been a disappointment to him has been lack of local support.

"I've been fighting off and on in Biloxi since I got out of the military. I'd like to see some Bay St. Louis people there."

"There are two people who come to all my nearby fights, and they're Ronnie Peterson and Terrell Randolph," Goodman said.

He said Peterson and Randolph are both former boxers and he feels their support has been important to his career.

State parks offer season discount

A special seasonal discount for cabins and motel units at Mississippi state parks has been announced by the Bureau of Recreation and Parks. On any Sunday through Thursday through March of 1985, cabins and motel rooms will be discounted 20 percent off the published 1985 rates.

Cabins and motel rooms at the state parks are fully furnished with bed and bath linen and, in the cabins, a fully equipped kitchen with cooking utensils and serving dishes. Many cabins have fireplaces.

Aubrey Rozzell, director of the Bureau of Recreation and Parks, said the discount will be especially useful to traveling government employees with limited travel funds.

Reservations are not required but are highly recommended. To make a reservation contact the park where accommodations are desired.

For a complete list of state parks with cabins and motel rooms, write Parks, Box 2000, Jackson, Miss. 39202, or call 961-5014.

SSC's Yasin Shabazz (15) stretches to cut that lead as Hawk Byron Washington (34) defends the HNC basket. Stanislaus eventually edged the hosts in a 53-56 final tally. (Photo by John Falcon)

ALL ACADEMIC TEAM—Juan Betanzos, a 1981 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis, has been named to the 1984-85 Academic All-American first team. Betanzos, a senior placekicker on the Louisiana State University varsity football team, is a business administration major. He was a member of the Southeastern Conference Academic first team in 1982, and he presently has a grade point average of 3.5. Betanzos scored 200 points at LSU as a placekicker, which made him the most prolific kicker in LSU history. He is second to Charles Alexander in the total number of career points. Betanzos, a native of Mexico City, spent six years at SSC where he was an alpha honor roll student and a standout member of the varsity football and track teams. His father, Fernando Betanzos Sr., graduated from SSC in 1961 as did his brother, Fernando Betanzos Jr., in 1980.

Allen joins Perk coaching staff

Joe Allen, an assistant football coach at Biloxi High School, had been named offensive and defensive line coach at Gulf Coast Junior College, GCJC President J.J. Hayden Jr. announced last Thursday.

Hayden said Allen, a 1967 alumnus of Perkinston campus, succeeds Mike Nelson, who has resigned to become head football coach at Pearl River Junior College, Poplarville.

Allen's appointment will be reviewed in February by the GCJC Board of Trustees, a routine procedure when a person is hired by the college, Hayden said.

He said Allen, 38, "has had an outstanding record at Biloxi," where he has coached football and track for 12 years. "We are delighted to have him join the Bulldog coaching staff."

Allen is a 1970 graduate of Delta State University, where he played football and later was a graduate football assistant. At Perkinston he was center on two GCJC State Champion teams, coached by George Sekul.

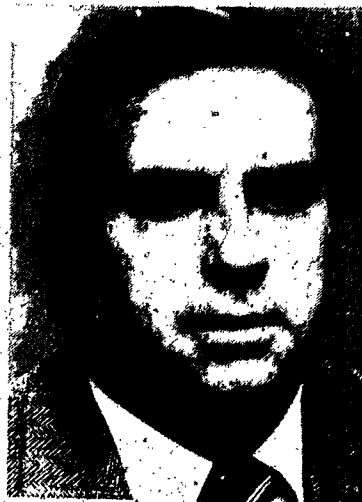

Sekul, who in 1984 led his team to a second National Junior Championship, said, "It is good to have a former Bulldog player join us as a coach. He brings with him the talent and experience needed to have winning teams."

Allen began his tenure at Biloxi after serving brief stints as head track coach and physical education instructor at Blair High and head football coach and teacher at Lillie Burney Junior High. Both schools are in Hattiesburg.

Of his new position, Allen said he is "excited and enthused. Perk has a great tradition of producing winning football teams. Its athletic program is one of the best—if not the best—in the nation. To become part of such an organization is a real challenge."

The Biloxi native said he and his family, wife, Diane, and children, Alicia, 14, and Joseph, 4, will live on the Perkinston campus.

Chamber to repeat Spring Pro Rodeo Classic

There will be cowboys and cowgirls on bucking broncos in Pascagoula again this year as the second annual Magnolia Pro Classic Rodeo returns during the days of May 3-5.

The Jackson County Area Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the rodeo which features some of the country's outstanding performers.

A new feature has been added to the rodeo this year with the staging of the Pro Rodeo Cowboys Association's Exceptional Rodeo.

The event, which will take place Saturday morning, May 4, features local handicapped children and professional rodeo partners working through a series of modified rodeo events in a special performance.

Also added this year will be the All Around Cowboys Award which will feature a custom made saddle handcrafted by Ammerman Brothers in Yoakum, Texas.

New specialty acts have been booked, the prize money has been increased, and the chamber of commerce expects an even bigger and better rodeo than last year. All of the six categories will be featured: bull riding, bare back riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and the ladies barrel race.

Rodeo performances are scheduled for Friday night, May 3, Saturday afternoon and night and a final show on Sunday, May 5.

The rodeo will be presented on the arena site next to the fairgrounds in Pascagoula. Ticket sales will begin in April. 3,500 seats will be available for each performance.

Allen joins Perk coaching staff

Joe Allen, an assistant football coach at Biloxi High School, had been named offensive and defensive line coach at Gulf Coast Junior College, GCJC President J.J. Hayden Jr. announced last Thursday.

Hayden said Allen, a 1967 alumnus of Perkinston campus, succeeds Mike Nelson, who has resigned to become head football coach at Pearl River Junior College, Poplarville.

Allen's appointment will be reviewed in February by the GCJC Board of Trustees, a routine procedure when a person is hired by the college, Hayden said.

He said Allen, 38, "has had an outstanding record at Biloxi," where he has coached football and track for 12 years. "We are delighted to have him join the Bulldog coaching staff."

Allen is a 1970 graduate of Delta State University, where he played football and later was a graduate football assistant. At Perkinston he was center on two GCJC State Champion teams, coached by George Sekul.

Sekul, who in 1984 led his team to a second National Junior Championship, said, "It is good to have a former Bulldog player join us as a coach. He brings with him the talent and experience needed to have winning teams."

Allen began his tenure at Biloxi after serving brief stints as head track coach and physical education instructor at Blair High and head football coach and teacher at Lillie Burney Junior High. Both schools are in Hattiesburg.

Of his new position, Allen said he is "excited and enthused. Perk has a great tradition of producing winning football teams. Its athletic program is one of the best—if not the best—in the nation. To become part of such an organization is a real challenge."

The Biloxi native said he and his family, wife, Diane, and children, Alicia, 14, and Joseph, 4, will live on the Perkinston campus.

Walleye bag reduced

FISH LIMIT

The state Commission on Wildlife Conservation has accepted the recommendations of fisheries biologists to reduce the bag limit on walleye from 15 to three per day.

The reduced bag limit, which took effect Feb. 11, came about largely because of increased fishing pressure from the sporting public in northeast Mississippi.

State fisheries chief Jack Herring of Jackson said that posters are being prepared by the Department of Wildlife Conservation for distribution to bait and tackle shops to show fishermen how to identify walleye.

"These posters will show anglers how to properly identify walleye from other species, so they will be able to comply with the daily limit of three walleye," Herring said.

Herring said that the reduced limit on walleye would remain in effect for a long time since the fish probably has never been here in abundant numbers.

"We don't know much about the earlier history of walleye in Mississippi," Herring explained. But we do know that they once occurred much further south in the state, even down into the Pearl River system.

"But due to pollution and other contaminants, walleye have been reduced in numbers," Herring said.

The state record walleye of eight pounds, four ounces, was caught in 1980 in Bull Mountain Creek by Ruble Bowen of Smithville.

Fisheries scientists say that construction of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway did not exactly help the plight of walleye, a fish which was probably never here in great numbers.

"Walleye are fish which migrate upstream each year to spawn, and they occur naturally in many of the streams of the Tombigbee river system," fisheries biologist C.A. Schultz of Aberdeen said.

"Now, since eight locks and dams have been built along the Ten-Tom Waterway, walleye are prevented from going further upstream to spawn. They congregate around the dams and are being caught more and more by fishermen."

According to Schultz, the unique fish has become somewhat of a prized trophy in many areas of northeast and east-central Mississippi. "The fish is a real fighter on the hook and line, and it is a very tasty food fish for the table," Schultz said.

STATE STAMP CONTEST

Only eight days remain for state artists to get their entries in Mississippi's state waterfowl stamp art contest.

The deadline is 5 p.m., Friday, Feb. 15.

The contest, which is open only to Mississippi residents, is sponsored each year by the Department of Wildlife Conservation to select artwork to appear on the state's waterfowl stamp.

Both amateur and professional artists are permitted to enter. A living species of North American migratory ducks or geese common to Mississippi must be the subject matter.

According to contest rules, the following species will not qualify for this year's contest since they have appeared on recent stamps: pintails, redheads, Canada geese, less scaup, and black ducks.

Anyone entering the contest should request an official application form and a copy of the contest rules by writing Duck Stamp Contest, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205.

The entry form must be filled out, signed and returned before artwork can be accepted for the contest.

Hancock Heart Association slates Diamondhead Golf Tournament

The Hancock County Heart Association met recently to discuss the plans for the upcoming Golf Tournament to be held at Diamondhead.

The Board of Directors of the Diamondhead Property Owners has granted the Heart Association the use of the Golf Course for this event. T-time is 12:30 p.m. May 17.

Any merchant or individual wishing to participate or co-sponsor this event is asked to call Ben Doss at 255-1686, Joyce Lee at 467-5431 or Anita Lamb at 255-2660.

BENCHWARMER'S SPORTS TRIVIA

What college basketball rule was changed after the 1936-37 season that made the game much faster?

ANSWER: The rule for a center jump after each basket was eliminated, making for much higher scores.

ANNOUNCING
"Friendship Oaks Condominiums"
Ground-Breaking Ceremony

PANORAMA, INCORPORATED (Dix Ashman and Milford Lady) the developers of Friendship Oaks Luxury Condominiums Invite all interested parties to attend the ground-breaking ceremony to be held under the existing units on the site at Coleman Avenue near Beach Boulevard in Waveland at 4:00 p.m. Friday, February 8th, 1985.

The 38 unit luxury project will be the first Condominium to be developed in the Bay-Waveland area and possibly the most complete facility along the entire Mississippi Gulf Coast. Each building will reflect classic architectural exterior creating an international flair. There will be two large buildings with three stories of units with parking and storage on ground level, 5 elevators, card or party room, hobby shop and sundeck. A third building will consist of four luxury townhouse units. The existing fourth building has four, two bedrooms, fully furnished units.

Every owner can relax in the covered, heated year round pool and hot tub building with kitchen, bar, and shower room, plus enjoy the adjoining tennis and shuffleboard courts. For the plant lovers there will be a pagoda with greenhouse and hobby shop surrounded by a Japanese garden. All owners will enjoy the view, the breeze and the white sand beach of the Gulf, along with all the on-site amenities is the convenience of restaurants and shopping within a few steps of their condo.

St. Stanislaus wins marketing competition

Students of St. Stanislaus High School won first place in the 1985 Millsaps Interscholastic Business Simulation Competition. Those students representing SSC were Mark Wheeler (captain), Nathan Bills, Billy Cox, Charles Schutt and Mike Wyatt.

James Thriffley served as faculty advisor for the students.

Other schools taking part in the competition were Murrah High School, McComb High School, Meridian High School, Pascagoula High School, Warren Central High School, St. Andrews Episcopal School, The Washington School, Jackson Academy and Northwest Rankin Attendance Center.

Students from the competing schools were presented facts and figures for the development of a business involved in the manufacturing and sales of mini computers.

Overall winner of the competition was determined by the total ROA (return on assets) achieved by the teams based on its administration and marketing decisions over eight periods, which simulated three months per interval, so that the simulation included two calendar years. This period was condensed for the competition to a period of eight weeks.

The students from St. Stanislaus met each Sunday evening for seven weeks and sent their decision into Millsaps on Monday morning. The eighth and final decision was handed in at Murrah Hall on the campus of Millsaps College in Jackson on Friday, Jan. 18.

At that time the final results were announced and St. Stanislaus was declared the winner based on its having achieved the highest return on assets.

This business simulation competition was sponsored by the School of Management at Millsaps College. The overall program was coordinated by Ginny Vegas of Bay St. Louis, who is a graduate student in the School of Management at Millsaps College.

In commenting on the achievements of the SSC students, Thriffley said, "I feel it was a real team effort and every member of the team contributed to its ultimate success. These students were very unselfish in their efforts, and they spent many long hours of their free time determining their ultimate decisions during the competition. For this reason these students deserve every bit of the recognition they have received."

Kiln native publishes coaching articles

Coach J. Larry Ladner, as assistant professor in the University of Southern Mississippi Department of Athletic Administration and Coaching, has published five articles since last July.

The articles are a series centering around aspects of his basketball specialty.

The most recent article, entitled "Time-Out Philosophy, Procedure, and Strategy," will appear in the Basketball Clinic International journal in February.

Written for coaches, the article offers a purpose and plan to ensure effective time-outs. It describes a plan including individual adjustments, team corrections, strategy changes and psychological reinforcement—the elements to a successful time-out, according to Ladner.

Coach Ladner, a native of Kiln, recommends saving the limited number of time-outs allowed until the latter part of the game, always making sure there is a definite and essential purpose for its use.

Ladner has been a member of the USM faculty since the establishment of the department in 1971. He formerly was a basketball coach at Poyune High School for 11 years, a period that saw his teams win many tournaments, the south Big 8 championship, reach the Big 8 playoffs, district tournament championships, the South Mississippi championship and runnerup spot in the state championship games.

Ladner also is the author of other articles published recently. They include "Fundamentals of Shooting Free-Throws," published by the Coaching Clinic journal in July; "Athletics: An Integral Segment of Education" in the Mississippi Association of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (MAHPERD) journal in October; "Drills and Their Effect for Winning Basketball" in the Basketball Clinic magazine in November; and "Psychological and Sociological Factors that may Affect Shooting Proficiency" in the Coaching Clinic during December.

News Brief

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY

Seven Loyola University students from Mississippi have been named to the spring 1985 dean's list with grade point averages of 3.5 or higher.

Florence Caffrey, Mary Caffrey and Jerry Killingsworth are from Pascagoula.

Samantha Dulaney and Pamela Robinson are from Gulfport.

Kathleen Eckert and Melanie Lepine are Bay St. Louis residents.

All seven students are in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Gallup Poll founder reveals home-school tie weakness

"A wall between the school and home" is one of the biggest roadblocks to improved education, according to the late George Gallup Sr.

"There has always been a wall between the school and home," said the nationally recognized pollster in an interview published in the National Association of Secondary School Principals' (NASSP) monthly journal.

"One of the first things that we discovered when we started polling on educational matters is that parents are eager for help," he indicated. "They want the schools to tell them what they should do to help their children perform better in school."

The creator of the Annual Gallup Poll on the Public's Attitude Toward Public Schools calls developing liaisons with parents the one part of education that has been neglected.

"When we talk to parents, we find they would like to attend classes once a week or every other week to learn how to deal with problems that are common to all families with school age children such as drug and alcohol abuse, how to motivate students to study, and how to improve their study habits," he reported.

Gallup suggests that schools of education train their students how to work with parents.

"If teachers would visit the homes of some students, that could have an important effect on the dropout rate."

Gallup outlined three other steps which he thought would improve schools, one of which dealt with the frequently-cited topic of homework.

"Students don't have enough work to do," he said. "Parents and many students feel the same way—that not enough homework is assigned."

He also suggested that more attention be given to learning how to learn. A week before school begins, students should be taught how to study, according to Gallup.

"We have made the error of believing that everyone knows how to study, everyone knows how to organize his or her work and thoughts," Gallup commented.

"This simply isn't true. Many bright young people get poor grades because they have never learned how to organize their thinking or how to study and learn. All high school students should have a course in speed reading. This would be a tremendous help to them the rest of their lives."

The veteran pollster also recommended that young people need more instruction about career selection.

"One of the sad facts of life is that many people get into fields in which they cannot compete successfully or find they dislike," he said. "The whole area of career selection has been neglected in our society, and I am certain that the schools should do more about this."

College requirements will include computer

Computer literacy may soon be added to the graduation requirements for Mississippi State University students.

A forthcoming change in academic standards could require every MSU student to be computer literate to graduate, and the university is rapidly acquiring the equipment needed.

Mississippi State has experienced phenomenal growth in computer equipment recently, according to Gerry Matthews, director of MSU's Computer Center, but that growth has been systematic and controlled.

Mississippi State owns more than 500 microcomputers, which are used for everything from research to student labs.

Another 250 will be added in January as the result of a contract made with a computer manufacturer.

A sign of MSU's commitment to use computers in higher education is evident in that 40 percent of the computer equipment purchased by Mississippi's eight public universities is bought by MSU, according to the state Central Data Processing Authority.

"There is hardly a department on campus that doesn't use microcomputers in its activities. It would be almost impossible to list all the ways we use computers here at Mississippi State," pointed out Vice President for Academic Affairs Robert E. Wolverton.

At least 16 student computer labs are scattered around campus from the chemistry department to forestry, and more are planned.

A recent survey in the College of Engineering showed that 20 percent of its students own microcomputers.

"Computers on our campus come from needs," Matthews said. "It's been an evolutionary process as opposed to just jumping in."

"There is an advisory committee with about 40 people on it from all across the university. One of the healthiest things is that those people know the problems of the university. They realize we've got a financial problem, so they can decide and establish priorities. Obviously, they are not the ultimate priority establishers, but their voice is certainly heard."

MSU has three departments for computer studies—computer science, computer engineering, and business information and quantitative analysis. MSU's computer engineering programs is the only one in the state. Brad Carter, head of the computer science department, recently noted: "Our students are well respected; they tend to go to major national firms on graduation. IBM being our leading recruiter. Historically, we have been the only university in the state that IBM's computing division has recruited at."

MUW offers to retrain non-proficient grads

Mississippi University for Women will soon become one of only a few schools in the nation to "guarantee" its graduates.

MUW plans to initiate an Educational Warranty Program, to become effective with the entering class this coming fall, as another step toward assuring the quality of its graduates.

"This program," explained Dr. James T. Murrell, vice president for academic affairs, "provides graduates and employers a warranty that specifies that if a graduate is unable to perform at a satisfactory level of proficiency for a first-year employee, the student may return to MUW, at no instructional cost, to take additional course work or receive other types of assistance in improving effectiveness in the areas of deficiency."

Course fees for students taking advantage of the new program will be paid by the MUW Foundation.

"This is a very significant component of MUW's commitment to providing a quality education for its students," said Dr. James W. Strobel, MUW president. "It is a key factor in not only fulfilling our commitment for this to be a challenging university to get out of, but one that will assure the credibility of the degree a student bears upon leaving this university."

Dr. Strobel commended academic leaders at MUW for "having the foresight and interest in making this significant step forward toward our commitment to quality."

MUW, in putting the Educational Warranty Program into effect, will initiate a number of requirements for all academic programs. The University will raise admission standards for academic majors, Dr. Murrell said. "Each academic division will establish standards and criteria for admission" into a particular program. "Student assessment will occur during the sophomore year or first term of enrollment for upper-level transfer students," he said.

Each academic division will also expand field experiences to provide more practical experience for students. MUW divisions will establish a comprehensive program for evaluation of students nearing the end of their academic major.

Divisions will also set up advisory committees composed of professional practitioners, graduates, business leaders or other interested persons. The committees will assist in a number of areas such as curriculum design review, recruitment and placement.

Dr. Murrell also pointed out that each division will develop a quality assurance report and recommendation process to "provide an accounting of each student's program."

The report, he said, will include "quality assurance recommendations signed by faculty at various levels of training and by the division head."

"The division leader's signature will represent an assurance that all standards have been met and that the student is ready for employment or continued graduate or professional training," the academic vice president stated.

The Educational Warranty Program is one of several steps being taken by MUW to insure the quality of educational programs. The W is raising its admissions standards from 15 to 18 at one point a year and is strengthening the core curriculum by adding 24 additional hours to liberal arts requirements "to insure that our graduates are well-educated individuals," Murrell said.

"But there is more to an education than high admission standards and a good core," he stressed. "It goes beyond that and it goes beyond just completing the 128 hours required for graduation."

"We owe our students more than just course work. We need to expect a great deal out of them, and I think we need to do a better job of total assessment or evaluation of the performance of our students," Dr. Murrell said. "We are taking a number of specific steps of this type to assure that every student has, in fact, received a quality education."

And we feel so strongly about that that we are initiating the Educational Warranty program."

Dr. Barbara Hanners, acting director of the Speech and Hearing Clinic and chairman of the Faculty Council, feels the new program "is a direction that all of our education needs to move in."

"As the pool of students dwindles, we're having to become more and more competitive for students, and I think if we can give them some guarantee that we're going to provide them with the best possible opportunities that they're going to feel more comfortable about spending their money."

Students, she said, are becoming "very educated consumers, and therefore, we've got to become very educated marketers of our services. We can't just sit back and look at the world from our 'towers' anymore. We have to get out and actively tell people what it is that we have to provide. One way we can do that is to look carefully at the new warranty system and see what we can do to implement it here."

"In fact," Dr. Hanners continued, "I think there are some things that we're already doing in some of the divisions that help do that."

Dr. Harry Sherman, head of the Division of Science and Mathematics, said he thinks "the idea of assurance of quality is excellent. I think of it largely in terms of 'quality control' as the student moves through the program to make sure that he or she is progressing at the level that we would want them to progress as highly competent graduates of this institution."

Dr. Hanners and Dr. Sherman both pointed out that some of the divisions already have requirements in place that will dovetail with those to be initiated through the Educational Warranty Program.

Eugenia Summer, head of the Division of Fine and Performing Arts, commented:

"In the division we are already doing some of the things outlined by Dr. Murrell. For example, we have some admission requirements special to each area, such as auditions, interviews, reviews of portfolios..."

Miss Summer said in her division "we also review the records of students at the end of certain semesters for the purpose of advising students as honestly as we can whether or not they should continue the degree program."

"I believe all of the faculty members in the division think it would be an excellent idea to have a comprehensive exit exam required of students in order to identify any weaknesses or gaps in literacy in their fields," she said.

"There would then be time to do something about it before students leave us," the division leader said.

The Educational Warranty Program is the first of its kind in the state. Several schools in other parts of the country have similar programs limited to teacher education, but even a smaller number initiate the program on a campus-wide basis.

"This is highly innovative in terms of teacher education programs...nationally there are very few, but it's super highly innovative for a whole university to make a commitment throughout its programs for quality assurance," said Dr. Strobel.

QUESTION - What percentage of heroin addicts also are alcoholics?

- a) None
- b) 10%
- c) 30%
- d) 50%

ANSWER - Nearly half of all heroin addicts are alcoholics or have drinking patterns which point to alcoholism, says a study released by the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Using a personal interview format, trained researchers also discovered, "Forty-four percent of the addicts with drinking problems reported that someone in their home was violent when they were growing up. Thirty-nine percent said their father was an alcoholic, while 37% reported being sexually abused as children."

According to the study, "Unstable adult lifestyles were evidenced by the fact that 47% of the alcohol-involved addicts reported illegal income sources and 86% had spent time in jail." The study also reports that 36% of the alcohol-involved heroin addicts had contemplated suicide and that 20% actually attempted to take their own lives.

Correct answer - d.

Just Don't Mix

Did you know that more than 15,000 Americans will die this year because of head and neck cancer? These deaths will result from the more than 50,000 head and neck cancers which are discovered each year. According to the American Academy of Otolaryngology-Head and Neck Surgery, a national society of physicians who treat problems of the ear, nose, throat, and related areas of the head and neck, cancers of the head and neck account for just over 5% of all malignancies.

Add to these statistics patients who develop cancer of the skin. Overexposure to the sun is linked with cancer of the head and neck, as well as that of the skin. Bagal cell cancer of the skin is the most common head and neck cancer. Fortunately, this is rarely a major problem if managed properly.

As many as 90 percent of these head and neck cancers occur after prolonged exposure to specific factors. Use of tobacco and alcohol is closely linked with a high occurrence of cancers of the mouth, throat, voice box and tongue. Good health habits may prevent many of these tumors from occurring. In adults who neither smoke nor drink, cancer of the mouth and throat is nearly nonexistent.

It is important to be able to identify the early warning symptoms of head and neck cancer. These symptoms, of course, do not necessarily indicate the presence of cancer. However, if you are present, it's good practice to see your doctor and be reassured. Cancer may not be present, but if it is, early diagnosis favors a high cure rate.

- Watch for:
- Lump in the neck.
  - Change in the voice.
  - Growth or persistent sore in the mouth.
  - Bringing up blood.
  - Problems with swallowing.
  - Changes in the skin.
  - Persistent earache.
